

Clean Streets Drive Started By Merchants

Narberth Business Council Asks For Trash Containers Committee To Be Appointed Soon

A drive to clean up Narberth's streets was inaugurated this week by the Narberth Business Council.

Howard F. Cotter, Jr., president of the organization, stated:

"Clean streets are conducive to good business. The main purpose of this drive is to make Narberth the cleanest town on the entire Main Line."

To Name Committee

Cotter added that a committee will be appointed to work out details of the drive and to enlist the aid of residents and merchants.

Members of the Business Council have made a formal request to the Borough Council for rubbish containers to be placed along curb lines on Haverford Ave.

George B. Suplee, director of public works for the Borough, said that several years ago a similar request had been made by the Business group, but that when the Borough Council purchased four containers, they were misused by merchants and were removed to the playground.

Now At Playground

"The idea worked for some time," Suplee said, "but after several months, the merchants and storekeepers threw all sorts of trash and garbage in them. All that are left now are on the playground for the children to use."

Suplee added that the main streets in the Borough were cleaned each Saturday by the Highway Department.

If the Borough Council decides in favor of the request by Cotter's organization, funds for the purchase of the containers would be appropriated from money set aside for highway works.

By DOROTHY M. OGDEN

Lots of things have been going on around town this week, despite so many residents' vacationing.

First of all, along the business moves in the new Hatfield. He's just moved into his new store on Narberth Ave. Incidentally, he did all the finishing on his jewelry cases, clever person that he is, so stop by and give them the once-over they are beauties.

Next on the list comes Leon Piercy, ex-mail carrier who started the Photo Hobby Shop with Bob Sieburg, last fall. Leon sold out to Bob in the Spring, and is keeping Mary Valentine's shop open while she is vacationing. Meanwhile, his wife is running a jewelry shop at 2818, Wildwood Boardwalk. In September they will open a combined card and gift shop at 121 N. Narberth Ave.

George Albert over at Fred Dannenhauer's shop told me that Dannenhauer's will be moving two doors down to 125 N. Narberth, and then when I stopped in to ask Charlie Collins where the Farmer's Market would go, he said that they would be moving up to Montgomery Ave. around the 15th of September.

Congratulations to Dr. Thaddeus L. Bolton, from over on Wayne Ave., who just celebrated his 51st birthday. He's as chipper as anything, and still writes letters to the editors, and was telling me one day last week, when I met him over at the Station.

Patrolman Augie Bailey was telling me that Monday night was a busy time for him. Seems that everyone in the Boro wanted ice cream and parked on the corner near Shea's to get it.

While I was working on the story about Mrs. Eva Latch Grow, I met up with her nice daughter, Mrs. Margaret Greiner, from over on Fairview Rd. in Penn Valley. Mrs. Greiner was saying that she has hardly more than moved down the road from the house in which she was born. Her 91-year-old mother sold that house to the E. S. Madar in 1921, and Mrs. Greiner said that they have made a beautiful home out of the old farmhouse. Guess you know that Mrs. Greiner's husband, Jacob, is construction foreman on roads and bridges for the Montgomery County Highway Department.

AROUND THE TOWN ... Nice to see Al Lambert, teller at the Bank, back home from his vacation. ... Narberth Laundry is putting in a new sidewalk in front of their store. ... Congratulations to Betty Mellor and Sterling Warner who have just announced their engagement. ... Paul Wohl-

Deny Marital Tiff In Boro Fracas With Patrolman

Mrs. Bernardo Constantini, of 525 Gordon Ave., Narberth, declared this week that the arrest of her husband August 30 was not preceded by any marital tiff.

"My husband occasionally speaks loudly," she said, "but we have been very happy together for many years."

After an argument with Patrolman Joseph Tierney last Tuesday night Bernardo was taken first to Bryn Mawr Hospital where he was treated for a head laceration and then to the Lower Merion police station on charges of disorderly conduct, resisting arrest and breach of peace.

This is the way Mrs. Constantini describes what happened.

"My husband was standing in his own backyard hollering to me for a match for his pipe when the patrolman jumped out of the bushes and hit him on the head," she said.

Patrolman Tierney, it was learned this week, was in civilian clothes. The rear yard of the patrolman's home is near Constantini's property.

The hospital records show that Bernardo, who is 65, was hit with a "police billy." Following his arrest he was held for Montgomery County Court, at which the serving patrolman testified that Bernardo bit, scratched and fought like a lion.

New Secretary Is Named For Society

The Board of Directors of the Children's Society of Montgomery County recently appointed Miss Mildred Hankins, of Philadelphia, executive secretary of the organization.

Miss Hankins, a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania, will replace Miss Margaret Betts who recently resigned.

Active members of the group in this area are: the Rev. Gibson Bell, of 529 Manor Rd., Wynnewood; Mrs. David Fry, of 225 Price Ave., Narberth; and James Gardiner, of Ardmore.

Merrick Sentenced To 2 1/2 to 10 Yrs.

Former Merion Resident Surrenders After 8 Months

Harry Medford Merrick, 3rd, former Merion resident, was sentenced Friday to a maximum of 10 years in Eastern State Penitentiary by Judge William P. Dannenhauer on a charge of larceny of a truck from the Montgomery County Prison Farm in 1945.

Merrick, 22, escaped from the Farm in Eaglesville, last December, and surrendered to authorities last week. He was also sentenced to from six months to one year for escaping from prison but this was directed to run concurrently with two and one half to ten years sentence.

Faces Long Term

At the time Merrick left the prison farm, he had 2 1/2 months to serve under previous sentence. The judge imposed, so that with this decision he will serve 9 1/2 months above the maximum of the sentences originally imposed. And they will be in the Penitentiary and not in the County Jail.

Merrick had been before the court three times in the last three years.

He first was arraigned on a charge involving theft of radios

Eight Main Liners At Middlebury College

Eight Main Line residents are among the 1018 students attending the Bread Loaf School of English and the Language Schools at Middlebury College, Middlebury, Vt., this summer.

They are Morton E. Weldy, of 45 Linwood Ave., Ardmore; Marietta D. Lent, of the Colonial Inn, Bryn Mawr; Elizabeth R. Kingsley, of the Lakeview Apts., Narberth; Helen Walsh, of 70 W. Princeton Rd., Bala-Cynwyd; Marcia Taff, Bryn Mawr College; Bryn Mawr; John R. Cary, of 727 Walnut Lane, Haverford; Dr. Anna Shumway, of New Gulph Rd., Bryn Mawr; and Newert Shamlian, of 1008 Lancaster Ave., Bryn Mawr.

Named Chairman

Fred C. Peters, of 48 S. Wyoming Ave., Ardmore, Montgomery County Commissioner, has been named Chairman of the Platform Committee of the Republican State Committee by Chairman M. Harvey Taylor. Peters' committee will submit a platform to the State Committee at Pittsburgh Sept. 7.

Price Control Chairmen Receive Citations

Yellow Sheet Attack Stirs Local Officials to Issue Challenge

Lower Merion Commissioners and School Directors this week challenged the anonymous spokesman for the mythical "Taxpayers Association" to come out of hiding and defend in public the issues of good government.

Their challenge came after the anonymous spokesman had mailed a closely-printed yellow pamphlet to 22,000 voters of Lower Merion Township. Including a cent and a half postage for each letter, plus printing costs, the Township's public officials figure it must have cost the "Taxpayers Association" at least $800 to reach the public.

Who Was Willing?

They are wondering what manner of man, political or civic, was willing to spend this amount of money to lambast their conduct of school and township affairs. In all, the yellow pamphlet was a hodge-podge of criticism and complaint.

The Lower Merion School Board, one of the wealthiest of its kind, took the brunt of the "Taxpayers Association" attack. Principally, the Board was berated for "wasting" money on unused school sites, which became tax-exempt as soon as acquired. On the other hand, Township Commissioners were criticized for not investing enough of the taxpayers money in parking lots.

Voting Record Of Cong. McConnell

The voting record of Congressman Samuel K. McConnell, Jr., Montgomery County Republican, in the Federal House of Representatives last week was as follows:

1. Voted for the approval of a conference report on the Railroad Reorganization Bill. Bill passed.
2. Voted for a motion to recommit to committee the Housing Survey and Construction Act. Motion passed.
3. Voted to override a Presidential veto of the Tidelands Oil Bill. Veto sustained.

Man Is Held On Morals Charge

Irvin Russell Long, 47, of 22 Cricket Ave., Ardmore, was held Monday on three morals charges for the next term of court. He was taken to Norristown jail after he was unable to post $3000 bail set by Joseph B. Allen, Jr., Lower Merion Township Justice of the Peace.

He pleaded not guilty to the charges which involved two Ardmore girls, age 16 and 18.

Long, a driver for a suburban bus company, was arrested Saturday night at his apartment by Lower Merion Township Detectives Charles Plumridge and John Waller.

Police reported that Long, a veteran of both World Wars, used chewing gum and candy to lure the girls and two small boys to his apartment. The boys were told to stay in the kitchen while Long is alleged to have been in the bedroom with the girls.

The detectives arrested Long on the complaint of the oldest girl's mother who was horrified at the story her daughter told when she went home.

Long was charged with assault with intent to ravish, enticing minors for immoral purposes, indecent assault, and assault and battery.

Services Held For E. Sharninghausen

Funeral services for Elmer W. Sharninghausen, of 289 N. Bowman Ave., Merion, retired executive of the American Engineering Co., were held Wednesday afternoon from Oliver H. Bair's, 1820 Chestnut St., Philadelphia. Mr. Sharninghausen died Saturday at his home.

Mr. Sharninghausen, who had been associated with the firm from 1918 until his retirement last year, had served as purchasing agent, treasurer, vice president and a member of the Board of Directors. In addition to his wife, Mrs. Margaret S. Sharninghausen, he is survived by his son, William, a member of the Philadelphia bar. Burial was in West Laurel Hill Cemetery.

It's All In Knowing How

"A bird in hand is worth two in the bush," must have been what the members of the Merion Fire Company were thinking as they chased an American bald eagle in Penn Valley last Thursday.

Agulla, the pet of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel P. Mannix, who were visiting Mrs. Jules K. Junker, of Sabine and Wynnewood Aves., was seen perched on a garage roof, resting after eluding the firemen, by Mary Ellen Hoffman, 10, and her sister, Edna, 12, of 525 Brookhurst Ave., Narberth. The two girls called Mr. Mannix.

The firemen, who had been chasing the bird most of the day, were astounded when the Mannix's technique in capturing the bird. It didn't take them five minutes, but they refused to divulge how they did it.

John P. May, 60, Railroad Man, Dies

John P. May, of 144 N. Narberth Ave., Narberth, chief clerk in the Ticket Redemption Office of the Pennsylvania Railroad, died Friday at Presbyterian Hospital, Philadelphia, after a short illness. He was 60.

A resident of Narberth for the past five years, Mr. May served as secretary of the Narberth Bridge Club from 1942 to 1945 and at the time of his death was a member of the Board of Directors of the Club.

Recruited into the Pennsylvania Railroad for 38 years, he was a member of the Philadelphia Passenger Association and of the Association of Railroad Ticket Agents.

Mr. May is survived by his wife, Mrs. Anna Leech May and his son, Nathaniel H. May.

Funeral services were held at St. Margaret's Church, Narberth, Tuesday morning. Burial was in Holy Cross Cemetery.

Bishop Corson Speaks At Bryn Mawr Church

Bishop Fred P. Corson, resident head of the Philadelphia area of the Methodist Church, declared Sunday at the Bryn Mawr Presbyterian Church that the hope for the making of a democratic Japan lay in the efforts of the more than a million Japanese Christians.

Bishop Corson, who has just returned home from a series of church conferences on the West Coast, preached the Sunday morning sermon at the church. The Rev. Merlin F. Hood, assistant minister, was in charge of the service.

Bitter Court Fight Looms Over Liquor Bid of Top Restaurant

A bitter fight in the Montgomery County Courts against the granting of a liquor license to the Top Restaurant, 1415 City Line Ave., loomed as a certainty this week.

Most positive to appear before Judge William F. Dannenhauer in Quarter Sessions Court, Norristown, Sept. 6, to oppose the granting of the license are two schools, a church and a still undetermined number of residents of Overbrook Hills.

Fight To Continue

Representatives of the Friends Central School, City Line Ave., Overbrook, of the Convent of the Sacred Heart, City Line Ave., and Haverford Rd., and of Christ Presbyterian Church of Overbrook Hills, Haverford and Manoa Rds., seemed certain to continue to make every effort to block the sale of liquor in their neighborhood.

The two schools and the church, together with almost 50 Overbrook Hills residents, appeared before the State Liquor Control Board at several hearings held in Philadelphia during March and April.

The Board's refusal of a license to sell liquor to Charles Wolf, proprietor of the Top Restaurant, came at the final hearing held May 29.

In its ruling the Board stated that the Pennsylvania Liquor Control Act authorized it to exercise its discretion to grant or refuse to grant a license, if the applicant was located within 300 feet of a church, school, hospital, charitable institution or public playground.

The Board stated that the restaurant was within 300 feet of the Sacred Heart Convent.

Wolf, through his attorney, Maxwell Strawbridge, solicitor for the Montgomery County Commissioners, appealed to the courts to overrule the Board's decision, contending the refusal was an abuse of its discretionary power.

Judge Dannenhauer last week ordered the Liquor Control Board to defend its action and set Sept. 6 for a hearing.

Representing the Convent will probably be John J. Speese, Philadelphia attorney.

It is also believed that Richard H. McFeeley, headmaster of Friends Central School, who appeared before the Board at its earlier hearings, will either appear at Norristown or be represented by an attorney.

Officials and members of Christ Church are also expected to be represented, and considerable neighborhood support of the protest seems likely this week.

Narberth Family Gets Month's Respite In Eviction Action; Unable To Find Another Home

Narberth Property Sales Recorded

Narberth real estate transfers were recorded in the office of the Recorder of Deeds in Norristown this week:

Edward Frederick Shaefer and Grace L. his wife, and Anna Louise Shaefer, of Narberth, to Gordon C. Hall and Doris L., his wife, the property at 102 Elmwood Ave., Narberth, for $11,750.

Eva Y. Strayer, widow of Lower Merion, and Eva Y. Strayer, executrix of the estate of S. Irving Strayer, deceased, to Bernhard Hoffman and Elizabeth E., his wife, the property located at 829 Montgomery Ave., Narberth, for $26,000.

Miss E. J. Roberts Dies In Wynnewood

Long a Resident of "The Cottage" on Shortridge Estate

Miss Elizabeth J. Roberts, companion and housekeeper for the late Mrs. N. Parker Shortridge until her death in 1929 at the age of 99, died Monday in "The Cottage," on the Shortridge estate, Lancaster Pike, Wynnewood.

Miss Roberts, who was 69, had been ill for many years. She was the daughter of the late Thomas and Jane Roberts.

With her at the time of her death was Mrs. Margaret Williams, a second cousin, who had lived at "The Cottage" since the death of her husband, Richard, 20 years ago. He had been the gardener on the Evan B. Morris estate, 3800 Chestnut Ave., Ardmore.

Miss Roberts came to this country from North Wales in 1905 at a girl. Her uncle, with whom she lived, was Robert Hughes, gardener for the N. Parker Shortridge family, whose home has long been a landmark on the Main Line. Shortridge was president of the Philadelphia National Bank and a vice-president of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Mr. and Mrs. Shortridge lost their only child, a son, in 1864 and years later they informally adopted Mrs. Shortridge's cousin, Parker Williams. When Mr. Shortridge died in 1915, Miss Roberts, already a trusted employee and friend of the Shortridge family, became Mrs. Shortridge's constant companion.

Last Trip In 1918

Neither Mrs. Shortridge nor Miss Roberts ventured far from Wynnewood. The last trip either of them made was to Philadelphia.

Lutheran Group To Discuss Appeal

Officers of the Martini Evangelical Church will meet this week to discuss a possible appeal to the Montgomery County Courts to overrule a decision of the Lower Merion Township Board of Zoning Adjustment.

The Martini congregation, whose church is located at 57th and Haverford Aves., West Philadelphia, were denied a request two weeks ago by the Board for a special exception to zoning regulations to build a new edifice on Overbrook Parkway, Overbrook-Hills-in-Merion.

The Rev. Walter F. Rieger, of 6037 Oxford St., West Philadelphia, pastor of the church, said this week that he was planning to discuss the appeal with members of the Philadelphia Pastor's Conference of his denomination before taking further action.

The Rev. Rieger also said he wanted to talk over possible appeal action with members of his congregation with "other persons."

Action of the Lower Merion Board of Zoning Adjustment against the West Philadelphia church came after almost 50 Overbrook Hills residents appeared before it to protest the church's petition.

Services Held For Miss Helen Brinton

Funeral services for Miss Helen C. Brinton, of the Barclay, were held Saturday morning at St. Asaph's Church, Conshohocken State Rd., Bala-Cynwyd. Miss Brinton died last Wednesday at University Hospital after a short illness.

Miss Brinton, who was manager of the Actors Club, 1715 Locust St., Philadelphia, for the last 12 years, is survived by her two sisters, Mrs. John Grimm, of Port Washington, L. I. N. Y., and Mrs. James Bailey, of Boston. Burial was in the church yard.

Villanova Home Sold

McMullin & McMullin have reported the sale of the estate "Eastfield" on Mt. Moro Rd., Villanova, including a brick English-style house, garage, garden, cottage and seven acres. The property was sold by the Pennsylvania Company for Insurance on Lives and Granting Annuities to Arthur H. Clephane, for $35,000. McMullin & McMullin were the brokers.

New Owner of Store and Apartment Says He Is Being Forced to Move From Merion House; Notice First Served on July 13

John P. Carthy, 24 Killed In Accident

Son of Lower Merion Policeman, James J. Carthy, Dies Friday

A 24-year-old Pacific war veteran, son of a Lower Merion Township policeman, was killed early Friday morning when the automobile he was operating overturned on Lancaster Pike, just west of City Line Ave., Overbrook. Victim of the fatal accident was John P. Carthy, of 641 Dayton Rd., Bryn Mawr, son of James J. Carthy, Sr., the Lower Merion policeman. The younger Carthy served in the Navy during the war in the Pacific.

Three Others Hurt

Carthy's younger brother, James J., Jr., 22, of 208 Cricket Ave., Ardmore, and two other passengers in the car were treated for severe cuts and bruises at Bryn Mawr Hospital. They were John Lavin, 38, an uncle of the Carthy's, of 229 Woodbine Ave., Narberth, and Benjamin Spencer, 22, of 2700 Chestnut Ave., Ardmore Park.

Sgt. Joseph Mawhinney, of the Lower Merion police Accident Investigation Squad, reported that Carthy apparently lost control of his car after he swerved sharply to avoid striking a heavy truck. The car turned over after hitting the curb on Lancaster Pike.

Rushed To Hospital

Carthy was rushed in a police ambulance to Bryn Mawr Hospital, where he died at 8:55 A. M., several minutes after he was admitted. Hospital officials said he suffered a fractured skull and internal injuries when he was pinned under the overturned car.

Since his return from the service he had been employed as a cab driver by the Suburban Cab Co. of Ardmore.

A Solemn Requiem Mass was celebrated Tuesday morning at St. Colman's Church, Ardmore. Burial was in St. Denis Cemetery.

House Sold

McMullin & McMullin have sold for Girard Trust Company a stone Colonial residence, garage and approximately two and a half acres of land, known as "Bagatelle," 14th Ave., Rosemont, to Archibald G. Thomson for $20,200.00.

Gasoline Tax

The Borough of Narberth will receive a quarterly payment of $831.84 Sept. 1 from the State Department of Highways as its share of the State gasoline tax.

Valedictorian

MRS. MARTHA E. DAIKELER

Mrs. Daikeler, who lives at 8 W. Newfield Way, Cynwyd, was valedictorian of the recent graduating class at Lincoln College Preparatory School, 1311 Spruce St., Philadelphia.

Mrs. Daikeler, who is 30, completed a three-year high school course in eight months. She will begin a four-year course in business teaching this Fall at Drexel Institute of Technology.

Born in Germany, she moved to Argentina when she was nine years old, and came to America with her family when she was 18. She lived in Hoboken, where she was employed after leaving high school in her sophomore year. She moved to Philadelphia when she married seven years ago.

Bought In April

The fight began last April when George B. Euler purchased a store and basement located at 33 N. Narberth Ave. at a sheriff's sale, and a month later notified Daubert he would have to move from the second floor apartment. Handicapped by the fact that his daughter, Mrs. Jacob Helfer, wife of a U. S. Marine stationed overseas, was the mother of two small children, 15 and 26 months, and was expecting another child in July, Daubert was unable to find another home within his means.

Rent Accepted

Daubert's former lease on the apartment was held by a building and loan association until the company foreclosed on the property, and it was bought by Euler.

Euler, according to Daubert, accepted rent for the apartment until a month ago, when he told Daubert that he was being forced to move from his home on Valley View Rd., Merion, and wanted possession of the apartment.

Couldn't Start Shop

He stated that he was unable to operate his plumbing and heating business in the store until he could gain possession of the apartment. Euler said that he could not employ help to stay in the store while he was making calls, and that if he were able to occupy the apartment, his wife would help him in that capacity.

A judgment of eviction was entered against Daubert by Euler July 13, and he was given five days to leave the property. At that point Daubert, not to be outdone, retained an attorney, Colonel Earle Heppburn, of Merion, who obtained a court stay of eviction proceedings July 20. Colonel Heppburn said this week

List Polio Case in Lower Merion Twp

The year's first case of infantile paralysis in Lower Merion Township was reported Sunday to Robert J. Thomas, Township Health Officer.

The victim, Mrs. Jane Conger, 25, of 102 Maple Ave., Bala, is in Bryn Mawr Hospital, where doctors say she has only a slight case. She is the mother of a 19-month-old daughter, Ellen. Her husband, William Conger, was discharged from the army last December after four years' service. He is an accountant with a Philadelphia insurance firm.

2 Cases in Haverford

In Haverford Township, one case of polio was reported June 21 and a second July 16. Both were light cases. A 37-year-old Beechwood woman is in Bryn Mawr Hospital, but her illness has not been positively identified as polio.

Also is Bryn Mawr Hospital is a seven-year-old Radnor Township boy who was stricken with polio last Thursday. He is Rodney Kulp, of 1503 Fairfax Rd., Rosemont.

A children's day camp at the Garrett Hill School was closed by Radnor Township health officials after the boy's illness was identified. He attended art classes there last Tuesday and Thursday, and 15 children known to have been in close contact with him are being watched. The day camp was scheduled to close Tuesday, so the order involved cancellation of only the final session.

27 Cases Last Year

There were 27 cases of infantile paralysis reported in Lower Merion Township last year, eleven in August. There were no deaths. Twenty-one cases were reported in Haverford Township in 1945, of which two were fatal. Eleven of the cases were in August.

Robert J. Thomas, Lower Merion Township Health Officer, issued the following statement this week:

"Parents are strongly urged to keep their children away from all public streams. These have been tested and have been found to be polluted."

Only Three Fires In Narberth In July

Only three fire calls were received during July by the Narberth Fire Company and no property damage was caused by fire. Chief Albert Nulty reported to the Board of Directors of the Company at a meeting Tuesday night in Elm Hall.

Nulty also reported that the company had a contributing membership of 1,000 residents in the Narberth fire zone. The area includes Narberth and parts of Penn Valley, Wynnewood, and Merion.

Mrs. Arthur Goldsmith, president of the Mullers, the women's auxiliary of the Company, was present at the meeting after an absence of three months.

Merrick Sentenced To 2½ to 10 Yrs.

Former Merion Resident Surrenders After 8 Months

Harry Medford Merrick, 3rd, former Merion resident, was sentenced Friday to a maximum of 10 years in Eastern State Penitentiary by Judge William F. Dannenhauer on a charge of larceny of a truck from the Montgomery County Prison Farm in 1945.

Merrick, 22, escaped from the Farm, in Eaglesville, last December, and surrendered to authorities last week. He was also sentenced to from six months to one year for escaping from prison but this was directed to run concurrently with two and one half to ten years sentence.

Faces Long Term

At the time Merrick left the prison farm, he had 2½ months to serve under previous sentences imposed so that with this decision he will serve 9½ months above the maximum of the sentences originally imposed. And they will be in the Penitentiary and not in the County Jail.

Merrick had been before the courts three times in the last three years.

Eight Main Line residents are among the 1018 students attending the Broad Loaf School of English and the Language Schools at Middlebury College, Middlebury, Vt., this summer.

They are Morton E. Weldy, of 45 Linwood Ave., Ardmore; Maureen D. Leach of the Colonial Inn, Bryn Mawr; Elizabeth R. Kingsley, of the Lakeview Apts., Narberth; Helen Wachos, of 70 W. Princeton Rd., Bala-Cynwyd; Marcia Taff, Bryn Mawr College; Bryn Mawr; John R. Cary, of 72 Walnut Lane, Haverford; Dr. Anna Shawman, of New Gulph Rd., Bryn Mawr; and Newert Shamblian, of 1008 Lancaster Ave., Bryn Mawr.

Named Chairman

Fred C. Peters, of 48 S. Wyoming Ave., Ardmore, Montgomery County Commissioner, has been named Chairman of the Platform Committee of the Republican State Committee by Chairman H. Harvey Taylor.

Peters' committee will submit a platform to the State Committee at Pittsburgh Sept. 7.

Price Control Chairmen Receive Citations

Mrs. Martha M. Diez, of 610 Pembroke Rd., Bryn Mawr, (second from right) chairman of the Ardmore Price Control Board, looks on while President Judge Harold G. Knight of Montgomery County congratulates Curtis B. Miller, of the Pottstown Board. Mrs. Diez and the three other County price control chairmen were presented Presidential citations for "selfless service" as volunteer O. P. A. workers at ceremonies held last Wednesday in Norristown. The other two chairmen are William H. Carnathan, of the Norristown Board (second from left), and Arthur H. Napier, of the Elkins Park Board (extreme right).

Yellow Sheet Attack Stirs Local Officials to Issue Challenge

Lower Merion Commissioners and School Directors this week challenged the anonymous "Taxpayers Association" to come out of hiding and defend in public the issues of good government.

Their challenge came after the anonymous spokesman had mailed a closely-printed yellow pamphlet to 22,000 voters of Lower Merion Township. Including a cent and a half postage for each letter, plus printing costs, the Township's public officials figure it must have cost the "Taxpayers Association" at least $800 to reach the public.

Who Was Willing?

They are wondering what manner of man, political or civic, was willing to spend this amount of money to lambast their conduct of school and township affairs.

In all, the yellow pamphlet was a hodge-podge of criticism and complaint.

The Lower Merion School Board, one of the wealthiest of its kind, took the brunt of the "Taxpayers Association" attack. Principally, the Board was berated for "wasting" money on unused school sites, which became exempt as soon as acquired. On the other hand, Township Commissioners were criticized for not investing enough of the taxpayers money in parking lots.

Outspoken Answers

Charles R. Kimbell, and Ivan W. Simpson, Rosemont and Merion commissioners, and Everett E. Burlingame, School Board president, were the most outspoken in challenging the undercover attack.

"It is shockingly bad when a group of individuals hides behind a guise," said Kimbell.

"We are always willing to listen to a taxpayer but you can't talk to a non-entity organization or an anonymous individual. Such a person should be man enough to make himself known and back up his ideas," declared Simpson.

"It is an anonymous communication and I am treating it as such," said Burlingame.

In addressing residents of the Township, the anonymous writer contends it is quoting newspaper

Voting Record Of Cong. McConnell

The voting record of Congressman Samuel K. McConnell, Jr., Montgomery County Republican in the Federal House of Representatives last week was as follows:

1. Voted for the approval of a conference report on the Railroad Reorganization Bill. Bill passed.
2. Voted for a motion to recommit the Hospital Survey and Construction Act. Motion passed.
3. Voted to override a Presidential veto of the Tidelands Oil Bill. Veto sustained.

Man Is Held On Morals Charge

Irvin Russell Long, 47, of 22 Cricket Ave., Ardmore, was held Monday on three morals charges for the next term of court. He was taken to Norristown jail after he was unable to post $3000 bail set by Joseph B. Allen, Jr., Lower Merion Township Justice of the Peace.

He pleaded not guilty to the charges which involved two Ardmore girls, aged ten and nine, Long, a driver for a suburban bus company, was arrested Saturday night at his apartment by Lower Merion Township Detectives Charles Plumridge and John Waller.

Police reported that Long, a veteran of both World Wars, used chewing gum and candy to lure the girls and two small boys to his apartment. The boys were told to stay in the kitchen while Long is alleged to have been in the bedroom with the girls.

The detectives arrested Long on the complaint of the oldest girl's mother who was horrified at the story her daughter told when she went home.

Long was charged with assault with intent to ravish, enticing minors for immoral purposes, indecent assault, and assault and battery.

Services Held For E. Sharninghausen

Funeral services for Elmer W. Sharninghausen, of 289 N. Bowman Ave., Merion, retired executive of the American Engineering Co., were held Wednesday afternoon from Oliver H. Bal's, 1820 Chestnut St., Philadelphia. Mr. Sharninghausen died Saturday at his home.

Mr. Sharninghausen, who had been associated with the firm from 1918 until his retirement last year, had served as purchasing agent, treasurer, vice president and a member of the Board of Directors. In addition to his wife, Mrs. Margaret S. Sharninghausen, he is survived by his son, William, a member of the Philadelphia bar. Burial was in West Laurel Hill Cemetery.

Fight To Continue

Representatives of the Friends Central School, City Line Ave., Overbrook, of the Convent of the Sacred Heart, City Line Ave., and Haverford Rd., and of Christ Presbyterian Church of Overbrook Hills, Haverford and Manas Rds., seemed certain to continue to make every effort to block the sale of liquor in their neighborhood.

The two schools and the church, together with almost 50 Overbrook Hills residents, appeared before the State Liquor Control Board at several hearings held in Philadelphia during March and April.

In addition to his wife, Mrs. Margaret S. Sharninghausen, he is survived by his son, William, a member of the Philadelphia bar. Burial was in West Laurel Hill Cemetery.

It's All In Knowing How

"A bird in hand is worth two in the bush," must have been what the members of the Merion Fire Company were thinking as they chased an American bald eagle in Penn Valley last Thursday.

"Agulla," the pet of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel P. Mannix, who were visiting Mrs. Jules X. Junker, of Sabine and Wynnewood Aves., was seen perched on a garage roof, resting after eluding the firemen, by Mary Ellen Hoffman, 10, and her sister, Edna, 12, of 525 Brookhurst Ave., Narberth. The two girls called Mr. Mannix.

The firemen, who had been chasing the bird most of the day, were astounded with the Mannix's technique in capturing the bird. It didn't take them five minutes, but they refused to divulge how they did it.

John P. May, 60, Railroad Man, Dies

John P. May, of 144 N. Narberth Ave., Narberth, chief clerk in the Ticket Redemption Office of the Pennsylvania Railroad, died Friday at Presbyterian Hospital, Philadelphia, after a short illness. He was 60.

A resident of Narberth for the past five years, Mr. May served as secretary of the Narberth Bridge Club from 1942 to 1945 and at the time of his death was a member of the Board of Directors of the Club.

An employee of the Pennsylvania Railroad for 38 years, he was a member of the Philadelphia Passenger Association and of the Association of Railroad Ticket Agents.

Mr. May is survived by his wife, Mrs. Anna Leech May and his son, Nathaniel H. May.

Requiem Mass was celebrated at St. Margaret's Church, Narberth, Tuesday morning. Burial was in Holy Cross Cemetery.

Bishop Corson Speaks At Bryn Mawr Church

Bishop Fred P. Corson, resident head of the Philadelphia area of the Methodist Church, declared Sunday at the Bryn Mawr Presbyterian Church that the hope for the making of a democratic Japan lay in the efforts of the more than a million Japanese Christians.

Bishop Corson, who has just returned home from a series of church conferences on the West Coast, preached the Sunday morning sermon at the church. The Rev. Merlin F. Hood, assistant minister, was in charge of the service.

Bitter Court Fight Looms Over Liquor Bid Of Top Restaurant

A bitter fight in the Montgomery County Courts against the granting of a liquor license to the Top Restaurant, 1415 City Line Ave., loomed as a certainty this week.

Almost positive to appear before Judge William F. Dannenhauer in Quarter Sessions Court, Norristown, Sept. 6, to oppose the granting of the license are two schools, a church and a still undernumbered number of residents of Overbrook Hills.

Two Near Convent

The Board stated that the restaurant was within 300 feet of the Sacred Heart Convent.

Wolf, through his attorney, Maxwell Strawnbridge, solicitor for the Montgomery County Commissioners, appealed to the courts to overrule the Board's decision, contending the refusal was an abuse of its discretionary power.

Judge Dannenhauer last week ordered the Liquor Control Board to defend its action and set Sept. 6 for a hearing.

Representing the Convent will probably be John J. Speese, Philadelphia attorney.

It is also believed that Richard H. McFely, headmaster of Friends Central School, who appeared before the Board at its earlier hearings, will either appear at Norristown or be represented by an attorney.

Officials and members of Christ Church are also expected to be represented, and a considerable neighborhood support of the protest seemed likely, this week.

Narberth Family Gets Month's Respite In Eviction Action; Unable To Find Another Home

Narberth Property Sales Recorded

Narberth real estate transfers were recorded in the office of the Recorder of Deeds in Norristown this week:

Edward Frederick Shaefer and Grace L. his wife, and Anna Louise Shaefer, of Narberth, to Gordon C. Hall and Doris L., his wife, the property at 102 Elmwood Ave., Narberth, for $11,750.

Eva Y. Strayer, widow of Lower Merion, and Eva Y. Strayer, executrix of the estate of S. Irving Strayer, deceased, ex. Bernhard Hoffman and Elizabeth E., his wife, the property located at 829 Montgomery Ave., Narberth, for $26,000.

Miss E. J. Roberts Dies in Wynnewood

Long a Resident of "The Cottage" on Shortridge Estate

Miss Elizabeth J. Roberts, companion and housekeeper for the late Mrs. N. Parker Shortridge until her death in 1929 at the age of 99, died Monday in "The Cottage", on the Shortridge estate, Lancaster Pike, Wynnewood.

Miss Roberts, who was 69, had been ill for many years. She was the daughter of the late Thomas and Jane Roberts.

Cousin At Bedside

With her at the time of her death was Mrs. Margaret Williams, a second cousin, who had lived in "The Cottage" since the death of her husband, Richard, 20 years ago. He had been the gardener on the Evan B. Morris estate, Mill Creek Rd., Ardmore. Morris was president of the Girard Trust Company.

Miss Roberts came to this country from North Wales in 1905 as a girl. Her uncle, with whom she lived, was Robert Hughes, gardener for the N. Parker Shortridge family, whose home has long been a landmark on the Main Line. Shortridge was president of the Philadelphia National Bank and a vice-president of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Mr. and Mrs. Shortridge lost their only child, a son, in 1884 and years later they informally adopted Mrs. Shortridge's cousin, Parker Williams. When Mr. Shortridge died in 1915, Miss Roberts, already a trusted employee and friend of the Shortridge family, became Mrs. Shortridge's constant companion.

Last Trip In 1918

Neither Mrs. Shortridge nor Miss Roberts ventured far from Wynnewood. The last trip either of them

Lutheran Group To Discuss Appeal

Officers of the Martini Evangelical Lutheran Church will meet this week to discuss a possible appeal to the Montgomery County Courts to overrule a decision of the Lower Merion Township Board of Zoning Adjustment.

The Martini congregation whose church is now located at 671 St. and Haverford Ave., West Philadelphia, were denied a request two weeks ago by the Board for a special exception to zoning regulations to build a new edifice on Overbrook Parkway, Overbrook-Hills-in-Merion.

The Rev. Walter F. Rueger, of 6037 Oxford St., West Philadelphia, pastor of the church, said this week that he was planning to discuss the appeal with members of the Philadelphia Pastor's Conference of his denomination before taking further action.

The Rev. Rueger also said he wanted to talk over possible appeal action with members of his congregation with "other persons."

Action of the Lower Merion Board of Zoning Adjustment against the West Philadelphia church came after almost 50 Overbrook Hills residents appeared before it to protest the church's petition.

Services Held For Miss Helen Brinton

Funeral services for Miss Helen C. Brinton, of the Barclay, were held Saturday morning at St. Asaph's Church, Conshohocken State Rd., Bala-Cynwyd. Miss Brinton died last Wednesday at University Hospital after a short illness.

Mrs. Brinton, who was manager of the Acorn Club, 1715 Locust St., Philadelphia, for the last 12 years, is survived by her two sisters, Mrs. John Grimm, of Port Washington, L. I., N. Y., and Mrs. James Bailey, of Boston. Burial was in the church yard.

Villanova Home Sold

McMullin & McMullin have reported the sale of the estate "Eastfield" on Mt. Moro Rd., Villanova, including a brick English-type house, garage, gardeners' cottage and seven acres. The property was sold by the Pennsylvania Company for Insurance on Lives and Granting Annuities to Arthur H. Clephane, for $25,000. McMullin & McMullin were the brokers.

John P. Carthy, 24 Killed In Accident

Son of Lower Merion Policeman, James J. Carthy, Dies Friday

A 24-year-old Pacific war veteran, son of a Lower Merion Township policeman, was killed early Friday morning when the automobile he was operating overturned on Lancaster Pike, just west of City Line Ave., Overbrook. Victim of the fatal accident was John P. Carthy, of 644 Dayton Rd., Bryn Mawr, son of James J. Carthy, Sr., the Lower Merion policeman. The younger Carthy served in the Navy during the war in the Pacific.

Three Others Hurt

Carthy's younger brother, James J., Jr., 22, of 208 Cricket Ave., Ardmore, and two other passengers in the car were treated for severe cuts and bruises at Bryn Mawr Hospital. They were John Lavie, 36, an uncle of the Carthy's, of 229 Woodbine Ave., Narberth, and Benjamin Spencer, 22, of 2700 Chestnut Ave., Ardmore Park.

Sgt. Joseph Mawhinney, of the Lower Merion police Accident Investigation Squad, reported that Carthy apparently lost control of his car after he swerved sharply to avoid striking a heavy truck. The car turned over after hitting the curb on Lancaster Pike.

Rushed To Hospital

Carthy was rushed in a police ambulance to Bryn Mawr Hospital, where he died at 8:55 A. M., several minutes after he was admitted. Hospital officials said he suffered a fractured skull and internal injuries when he was pinned under the overturned car.

Since his return from the service he had been employed as a cab driver by the Suburban Cab Co. of Ardmore.

A Solemn Requiem Mass was celebrated Tuesday morning at St. Colman's Church, Ardmore. Burial was in St. Denis Cemetery.

House Sold

McMullin & McMullin have sold for Girard Trust Company a stone Colonial residence, garage and approximately two and a half acres of land, known as "Bagatelle," Ithan Ave., Rosemont, to Archibald G. Thomson for $20,200.00.

Gasoline Tax

The Borough of Narberth will receive a quarterly payment of $831.84 Sept. 1 from the State Department of Highways as its share of the State gasoline tax.

Valedictorian

Mrs. Martha E. Daikeler, who lives at 6 W. Newlin Way, Cynwyd, was valedictorian of the recent graduating class at Lincoln College Preparatory School, 1311 Spruce St., Philadelphia.

Mrs. Daikeler, who is 30, completed a three-year high school course in three months. She will begin a four-year course in business teaching this Fall at Drexel Institute of Technology.

Born in Germany, she moved to Argentina when she was nine years old, and came to America with her family when she was 12. She lived in Hoboken, where she was employed after leaving high school for her sophomore year. She moved to Philadelphia when she married seven years ago.

Bought In April

The fight began last April when George B. Euler purchased a store and basement located at 33 N. Narberth Ave. at a sheriff's sale, and a month later notified Daubert he would have to move from the second floor apartment. Handicapped by the fact that his daughter, Mrs. Jacob Heifer, wife of a U. S. Marine stationed overseas, was the mother of two small children, 15 and 26 months, and was expecting another child in July, Daubert was unable to find another home within his means.

Rent Accepted

Daubert's former lease on the apartment was held by a building and loan association until the company foreclosed on the property, and it was bought by Euler.

Euler, according to Daubert, accepted rent for the apartment until a month ago, when he told Daubert that he was being forced to move from his home on Valley View Rd., Merion, and wanted possession of the apartment.

Couldn't Start Shop

He stated that he was unable to operate his plumbing and heating business in the store until he could gain possession of the apartment. He said that he could not employ help to stay in the store while he was making calls, and that if he were able to occupy the apartment, his wife would help him in that capacity.

A judgment of eviction was entered against Daubert by Euler July 13, and he was given five days to leave the property. At that point Daubert, not to be outdone, retained an attorney, Colonel Earle Hepburn, of Merion, who obtained a court stay of eviction proceedings July 20.

Colonel Hepburn said this week

List Polio Case in Lower Merion Twp

The year's first case of infantile paralysis in Lower Merion Township was reported Sunday to Robert J. Thomas, Township Health Officer.

The victim, Mrs. Jane Conger, 25, of 102 Maple Ave., Bala, is in Bryn Mawr Hospital, where doctors say she has only a slight case. She is the mother of a 19-month-old daughter, Ellen. Her husband, William Conger, was discharged from the army last December after four years' service. He is an accountant with a Philadelphia insurance firm.

2 Cases in Haverford

In Haverford Township, one case of polio was reported June 21 and a second July 16. Both were light cases. A 37-year-old Beechwood woman is in Bryn Mawr Hospital, but her illness has not been positively identified as polio.

Also is Bryn Mawr Hospital is a seven-year-old Radnor Township boy who was stricken with polio last Thursday. He is Rodney Kulp, of 1503 Fairfax Rd., Rosemont.

A children's day camp at the Garrett Hill School was closed by Radnor Township health officials after the boy's illness was identified. He attended art classes there last Tuesday and Thursday, and 15 children known to have been in close contact with him are under quarantine. The day camp was scheduled to close Tuesday, so the order involved cancellation of only the final session.

27 Cases Last Year

There were 27 cases of infantile paralysis reported in Lower Merion Township last year, eleven in August. There were no deaths. Twenty-one cases were recorded in Haverford Township in 1945, of which two were fatal. Eleven of the cases were in August.

Robert J. Thomas, Lower Merion Township Health Officer, issued the following statement this week:

"Parents are strongly urged to keep their children away from all public streams. These have been tested and have been found to be polluted."

Only Three Fires In Narberth In July

Norby three fire calls were received during July by the Narberth Fire Company and no property damage was caused by fire. Chief Albert Nulty reported to the Board of Directors of the Company at a meeting Tuesday night in Elm Hall.

Nulty also reported that the company had a contributing membership of 1,000 residents in the Narberth fire zone. The area includes Narberth and parts of Penn Valley, Wynnewood, and Merion.

Mrs. Arthur Goldsmith, president of the Mulders, the women's auxiliary of the Company, was present at the meeting after an absence of three months.

and because of his youth was given a minimum sentence of five months to 23 months by Judge Dannehower. He was sentenced to three months of five months sentence.

Three months after his release on parole, January 19, 1945, Merrick was back in prison, this time charged with the sale of nine valuable rugs owned by his father which he disposed of to a second hand dealer. He was sentenced to a term of 11½ to 22 months by Judge Knight on April 9, 1945, and was serving this sentence when he escaped.

One Visit From Wife

While in prison Merrick's father died. His mother failed to visit him in prison and his wife visited him only once during the 10 month period he was there, he said.

He had a talk with Warden Peter Reilly and there were indications he was trying hard to rehabilitate himself. In order to aid him in building up his health, Warden Reilly sent Merrick to the prison farm.

While there, word of the death of his father, the fact no one came to see him, caused him to become emotionally upset. "I just couldn't take it any longer," Merrick told Judge Dannehower.

He went to the farm garage and got the truck. He drove to Philadelphia and abandoned the truck. Then he went to Brooklyn, N. Y., where he obtained employment. He remained there about seven months.

Family Gives Him Up

Last Wednesday he called his mother and his wife and said he wanted to give himself up. take his punishment and start life anew. They contacted Attorney Thomas Waters who arranged for his surrender.

An ironical part of the proceeding was that Waters who defended him last week was the Assistant District Attorney who prosecuted the cases against Merrick on his previous trips into court.

Miss Schock Wed Saturday In Philadelphia

Wed to Dr. E. Horne; Colorful Reception Held At Union League

The marriage of Miss Dorothy Louise Schock, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Harvey Earl Schock of Overbrook, to Dr. Elwood O. Horne, took place Saturday, August 3, at 10:30 A. M., at the Trinity Church, Philadelphia. The Rev. John Craig Roak officiated. The bride wore a fitted navy blue gown, with a halo hat and white flowers and white gloves. She carried white orchids.

Mrs. James W. Gibbs, of Germantown, was matron of honor and only attendant for the bride. She wore a coco brown dress with aqua gloves and a matching cocoon and aqua hat. Her corsage was of brown and yellow orchids.

The mother of the bride was gowned in a gray and white satin print dress, with a large white hat, three-quarter length gloves, and an orchid corsage.

Mrs. Horne wore a black and white print dress with black accessories and an orchid corsage. Following the ceremony, there was a reception at the Union League for members of the immediate families. Upon their return from a wedding trip to the Poconos and Cape Cod, Dr. Horne and his bride will make their home in Worcester, Mass.

Miss E. J. Roberts

made was in 1918 when they went to Boston.

After Mrs. Shortridge's death in 1929, Miss Roberts became companion to Mrs. Ellen Williams, whose son Parker had inherited the entire Shortridge estate. After Mrs. Williams' death in the 1930's, Miss Roberts retired to the gardener's cottage on the estate, and lived there in seclusion until her death Monday.

When Parker Williams died in 1943, his will stipulated that Miss Roberts was to have "life tenure" of "The Cottage" until the ground was sold.

When the Mahoney Construction Company, of Ardmore, bought the 99 acres comprising the Shortridge tract last year for a building development, Edwin B. Mahoney, president of the company, said that the tract will be developed around Mrs. Roberts' cottage so that she will have a roof over her head as long as possible.

"Good Old Days"

When Parker first bought the tract planning to erect houses on 6,000-square foot lots, he offered the barn on the estate to the Wynnewood Civic Association for a community development. At that time, Miss Roberts was interested in seeing the house and barn put to use so that future generations would have some idea of the "good old days."

She told reporters then that she could remember "the days when Parker Williams was a student at Haverford and the time it's his son, Dick, who was when the old house was filled with young people and rang to the echoes of their good times."

She also stated that she hoped whoever "buys the 'big house' would keep up the traditional hospitality of the Shortridge mode of life." She was anxious for the Wynnewood Civic Association to act on the Mahoney offer so that "the part of Philadelphia during Revolutionary Days, was recently purchased by Mrs. Samuel Kerr, mother of Mrs. William Ferguson, of Remington Rd., Wynnewood. Mrs. Kerr had already begun to restore the house to its original Colonial lines.

Funeral services for Miss Roberts were held at her late residence Thursday, August 6, at the private in the graveyard of the Church of the Redeemer, Bryn Mawr. Miss Roberts' cousin, Robert Hughes, was sexton of that church for many years, and she lived at the sexton's house during the first years of her life in America.

Miss Fischer Plans September Wedding

ert was telling me that he is planning to enter Drexel in the Fall. He took me around to say "hi" to Riecky, the little raccoon who is the Boro Fire Co. mascot. He's grown to mammoth proportions, by now.

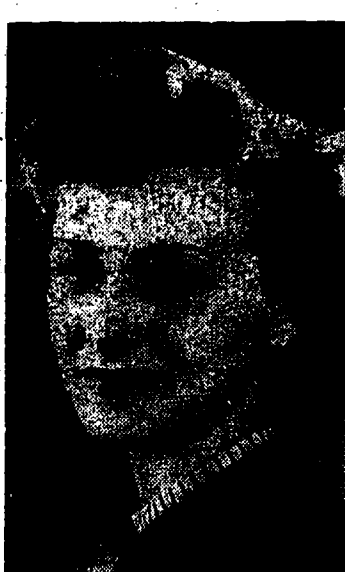

Congratulations to the Harrison Berrys—they are grand-nephews again, this time it's their son, Dick, whose wife, Jean, had a little boy. He was born in July, and will be called Richard Palmer Berry, Jr.

Guess you know that Dick and Jean are living in Newton, Mass., and Dick is working for the Rattray Company, a food packaging concern in Boston. . . .

The Boro is boasting a new artist in Frances Dooner of 531 Homewood Ave. Seems that she has been studying painting for several years now, first with Jacques Ernotté at the Sorbonne in Paris, and then with Paul Martel here in the U. S., and at the Graphic Sketch Club. For the past five and a half years she has been with the Barnes Foundation in Merion and with Hobson Pittman at Pennsylvania State College. Now she is having a show opening Wednesday night at the Philip Ragan Associates Art gallery in the Suburban Station building, and best of luck to her. . . .

See you next week, same time, same place. "Bye for now. . . ."

Miss Doris S. Mann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Mann, of Levering Mill and State Rds., Cynwyd, whose engagement to Burton S. Singer, of Cleveland, O., was recently announced.

Miss Johnston, Cleo Buxton, Plight Troth

Married Saturday in Narberth Church; To Live in Princeton, N. J.

Miss Louisa H. Johnston, niece of Miss Lida J. Johnston, of Narberth Hall Apartments, Narberth, became the bride of Cleo W. Buxton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter F. Buxton, of East Lansing, Mich., Saturday afternoon. The ceremony, which took place in the Narberth Presbyterian Church at 4 o'clock, was performed by the Rev. Fred Edgar.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Walter H. Brown, of Denville, N. J., wore a white marquisette gown, with a fitted bodice, long full sleeves tapering to a point at the wrists and a full skirt ending in a train. Her finger-tip length tulle veil was fastened with a Juliet cap of seed pearls, and she carried a bouquet of white roses and stephanotis.

Miss Kathrine Johnston was her sister's maid of honor. She wore a peach gown, with a fitted bodice and a full skirt. Her flowers were carried by her bouquet of tulle and delphinium.

The bridesmaids, Miss Marjory Havlicek and Miss Ann Hansen, wore blue marquisette dresses, with headresses and bouquets similar to those of the maid of honor.

Keith Hunt, of Rochester, Minn., served as best man, and the ushers included Robert Bowen, Wesley Olson, Donald May and Bickford Lang.

After a wedding trip to Michigan, Mr. Buxton and his bride will make their home in Princeton, N. J.

Vacation Bound

Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Gold, of 210 Woodbine Ave., Narberth, and their daughter and son, Jean Marie, and Robert Jr., will leave Saturday for Pleasant Mt., Wayne Co., Pa., where they will stay until September.

Store Cafeteria
Assembly rooms for veterans' organizations from Lower Merion communities and a store-cafeteria similar to the Army Post Exchange were also suggested.

Beyerley's letter said that "under proper management this building will prove to be thoroughly capable of earning more funds than will be necessary for its operating expenses."

The letter concluded by noting that "Lower Merion is a big, sprawling Township, which should be capable of erecting something worthwhile for those who have given so much for it."

"It has often been said that the only time the folks of Lower Merion were united was at the High School basketball games when the team was playing for the State Championship."

"Perhaps this Memorial would serve to bring out folks in the township closer together for the trying years to come."

Beyerley's suggestion is one of many made within the past several weeks by Main Line civic groups.

One group, the Main Line Chamber of Commerce, has appointed a Committee on War Memorials. An early Fall meeting of the committee has been called to discuss several projects.

Members of the committee are J. Walter Jammons, Township Treasurer; Joseph J. Skelton, of St. Louis, and New York, took place last Thursday in the presence of the immediate families. The ceremony, which was held at the summer home of the bride's parents, was performed by the Rev. Claude Bond.

Bryn Mawr Girl Wed Thursday In Mass.

The marriage of Miss Joan Sangree Drake, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Drake, of 707 Pennstone Rd., Bryn Mawr, and Nantucket, Mass., to William Howe McElwain Talbot, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Cleveland Talbot, of St. Louis, and New York, took place last Thursday in the presence of the immediate families. The ceremony, which was held at the summer home of the bride's parents, was performed by the Rev. Claude Bond.

Kathleen Claffey, Gladwyne Man To Wed Saturday

Mrs. Edward Moran, of Bryn Mawr, will be matron of honor at the wedding of her sister, Miss Kathleen P. Claffey, daughter of Mr. John Claffey, of 714 Railroad Ave., Bryn Mawr, and the late Mrs. Claffey, to Carson S. Halberstadt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Halberstadt, of State Rd., Gladwyne. The marriage will take place Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the rectory of Our Mother of Good Counsel Church, Bryn Mawr. The Rev. Eugene A. Mauch will officiate.

Miss Mary Mahon will be the bridesmaid.

James Doran will serve as best man, and the usher will be Joseph McGilvery.

Following the ceremony there will be a dinner at the Bala Inn for the wedding party and members of the immediate families. After a wedding trip to the Poconos, Mr. Halberstadt and his bride will reside in Bryn Mawr.

Elizabeth Dripps, Richard B. Royer, To Wed Sept. 7

The Chapel of the Bryn Mawr Presbyterian Church will be the setting for the wedding of Miss Elizabeth Jane Dripps, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Dripps, of "Tall Trees," Haverford, to Richard Bradley Royer, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Royer, of 104 School House Lane, Ardmore, which will take place at noon, on Saturday, September 7. The Rev. Dr. Rex S. Clements will officiate.

Miss Anne A. Maginnis, of Indianapolis, Ind., will serve as maid of honor.

Mr. Royer will be his son's best man, and the ushers will include H. Graham Dripps, Frank Longstreth, E. Hendricks Funk, Jr., Frank C. Royer, Jr., brother of the bridegroom; and Lieutenant Jonathan E. Hays, USN.

A reception at the home of the bride's parents will follow the ceremony.

Richard Sloan Weds Virginia Girl Saturday

Weds Mary V. Woolf; After Honeymoon, to Live in Harrisonburg

Miss Mary Virginia Woolf, daughter of Mrs. Andrew Woolf, of Harrisonburg, Va., and the late Mr. Woolf, became the bride of Richard Thorne Sloan, son of Mr. Samuel Alan Sloan, of 435 Levering Mill Rd., Cynwyd, and the late Mrs. Sloan, on Saturday afternoon in the Harrisonburg Methodist Church, Va. The Rev. Beverly Tucker White performed the ceremony.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. William B. Woolf, of Keyser, West Virginia, wore a white satin gown with an off-the-shoulder neckline, a tulle yoke, long sleeves and a fitted bodice. Her tulle veil was attached to a coronet of seed pearls and fell over a full skirt ending in a train. She carried a bouquet of white orchids, roses and stephanotis.

Miss Gertrude Lowery served as maid of honor, and the bridesmaids included Miss Mollie Powell, of Moorefield, West Virginia, cousin of the bride; Miss Margaret Brock, Miss Betty Silbert and Miss Betty Fletcher, of Washington, D. C.

The attendants were gowned alike in blue crepe dresses with bandeaus of silver in their hair. Miss Lowery carried a bouquet of flame gladioli, and the bridesmaids, bouquets of pink gladioli.

S. Alan Sloan, Jr., of Short Hills, N. J., was best man for his brother, Woolf, brother of the bride; Charles T. Burke, Harrisonburg, William B. Gunn, of Danville, Va., and George Harrison, of Gladwyne.

A reception at Stoneleigh Inn followed the ceremony. After a wedding trip, Mr. Sloan and his bride will make their home in Harrisonburg.

Mrs. Maxwell Wed To Eagles Mgr. In New York Tues.

Mrs. Josephine Munson Maxwell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Sharp Munson, of 510 N. Latches Lane, Merion, and Bar Harbor, Me., was married in New York, Tuesday, to Harry M. Maxwell, Thayer, of Merion, general manager of the Philadelphia Eagles football team.

The bride recently was divorced from Morris Clothier Maxwell, of Wynnewood, to whom she was married in 1938. They have two children, Walter C. Maxwell and Natalie Maxwell. She made her debut here in the season of 1932-33 after attending the Shipley School, Foxcroft School and Mountblanton School, Switzerland. Her sister, the former Natalie Munson, recently was married here to Laurence J. Brengle, of New York.

Mr. Thayer's previous marriage to the former Jean Alton ended in divorce in 1936. He was business manager of the all-star tennis tour that featured Donald Budge, Bobby Riggs, Frank Kovacs and Fred Perry in 1942.

Prejudice Against Handicapped Blamed on Poor Child Guidance

(Editor's Note: Mrs. Elizabeth Burt Byall, unable to walk without the aid of crutches for 30 years as the result of Polio when she was a baby, has written a series of articles, of which this is the last. She is particularly anxious to tell her story to disabled veterans who are trying to adjust themselves to a new way of life. Mrs. Byall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Burt, of Narberth, graduated from Lower Merion High School in 1932, studied at the University of Pennsylvania and took advanced courses in medical technology at Jefferson Hospital, Philadelphia. She has been a member of the staff of Dr. S. DeWitt Ludlum's Gladwyn Colony since 1942. She and her husband, Evan Bruce Byall, live on Black Rock Rd., Gladwyn.

And so we come to the most difficult part of our story—the part which concerns something as undeniable as a stone wall, something as intangible as mist: public prejudice toward handicaps.

For many years I asked myself why it was that a people, warm, enthusiastic, a people devoted to its children and its animals; a people who practically to a man support an organization like the United Cerebral Palsy Society, raised such barriers where handicaps are concerned; why companies and employers shy away from employing anyone with a handicap; why people make such an issue of the whole thing.

I approached Mrs. Bruce Byall the problem from every possible angle. I thought, And still no sensible answer. Then one day the answer suggested itself.

I was waiting for a train one afternoon. A little girl and her grandmother were sitting next to me. The little girl looked me over with the utter candor of early childhood. Then she turned to her grandmother and in a clear, natural voice said, "Grandma, why does that lady have those things?" (meaning my crutches).

Not Quite Nice
Whereupon grandmother put her finger to her lips and said, "Shall I tell you a story? How about Goldilocks?" There was my answer. Grandmother obviously was a well-bred, well-educated woman who had lived a reasonably full life, yet she did not have the intelligence either to realize that she was creating forever in that child's mind the association of a handicap with something that one did not talk about—something that wasn't quite nice.

And then I began to recall many similar situations; the little boys and girls I had yanked away from my vicinity—scolded, slapped, shushed or, at best, put off with some stupid comment such as, "They are just for big girls, dear!"

Sometimes you will encounter an unbelievable combination of intelligence and stupidity. Last year during the polio epidemic, a little girl seeing me looked up at her mother and said, "Mother, did that lady have polio?"

The infant looked all of about three and obviously had been carefully instructed about polio. Yet when she asked a forthright question her mother shook her shoulder impatiently and said, "Keep quiet!" When the infant pursued the question hopeful of a more rational answer the mother rose and walked her away from me.

Emotional Hang-Over
Perhaps you think I am stressing the importance of this too much. I am certain that I am not. After all, prejudice about something like a handicap is not the result of intelligent adult thinking. It is an emotional hang-over, a subconscious association.

And I believe it has its insidious beginning in just such incidents as I have related. I charge every parent and everyone responsible for any child with the seriousness of such acts. I demand his recognition of his obligation to that child and its future life to instruct him properly concerning handicaps of all kinds—without drama, without emotion, so that he may have a normal healthy curiosity satisfied and develop a rational acceptance of these deviations from normal.

There is nothing abnormal in a child's curiosity, he asks about handicaps just as he asks about a million other things which attract his attention. So if you will cooperate in this, that will take care of the future. It won't help the present much, for the present contains people who have been indoctrinated in the not-nice school.

I have been turned down for countless jobs because I was handicapped. My qualifications were superior, I was assured. Yes, undoubtedly I could do as well or better at the job BUT—sometimes it was because it would complicate the insurance system of the company, or I would have a flight of stairs to go up or down (I have had as many as twenty-two a day at school!) and of course that would make it impossible.

Public Opinion Blamed
I was told by the representative of a medical group who was interviewing me for a job for which I was more than qualified, "Public opinion would prevent us from giving you the job. I wish it weren't true but it is." This from doctors—blood brothers of the man who spent all his skill and much of his time taking me apart and putting me together again so that I COULD live like other people!

But it's like that, and you might as well face it. And it will be like that until there has been time for us to bring up a new generation of people with a different point of view.

Of course not every potential employer is like that. Occasionally you will find one who somehow has managed to come out unscathed by prejudice. Hunt till you find him, for you cannot win with the others. Trying to fight their point of view is a heart-breaking and fruitless business. I know. It will take you longer to find a job the way I suggest, but when you do find it you will really have something.

Of course during the war when they were pushed to the wall, many companies were forced to employ handicapped personnel and found to their amazement that their work records and, incidentally, records were considerably better than those of their untrammelled brothers.

That would be so, of course. Remember what I said about a handicap being a challenge to achieve?

Well, there, briefly, you have it. Of course, in my three short visits with you I have not attempted to do more than give you a working outline. But if you are interested, I still have thirty years of experiences to which you are welcome for the asking.

Mrs. Eva Latch Grow (left), with her daughter, Mrs. Margaret Geiner at their Penn Valley home.

Mrs. Eva L. Grow, Resident Of L. Merion, Is 91 Years Young

Born Here in 1855, Her Life Reflects Story of Township

The next time you think you "can't stand this daily routine another day" just stop by and see Mrs. Eva Latch Grow, who at 91 years of youth is still going strong.

Mrs. Grow has quite a history, all of which centers around Lower Merion Township. She was born February 24, 1855, on the present site of West Laurel Hill Cemetery, Pencoyd, which was then her father's dairy farm. In 1870, her father, the first Charles W. Latch, sold the farm to that company and bought two other dairy farms on Hagerford Rd., Penn Valley.

Married At 20

After Charles Latch bought his farm, his next-door neighbor was George T. Grow, whose son, George Jr., Mrs. Grow reminisces, seemed to her a "very nice young man." As it turned out she thought him nice enough to marry on her 20th birthday, in 1875, and they lived on the Grow farm for 45 years.

"You know," Mrs. Grow says, "George's father was born in 1812 on that farm, which was part of the 600-acre farm the Grow family bought in 1778. George was the last of the Grow's; and, incidentally, he was on the first Board of Commissioners for Lower Merion Township, which was formed in 1900."

Her bright eyes snap as she tells of the days when all of Cynwyd was tucked in the pocket of Thomas G. Lodge, who owned a dairy farm there.

"The Hoffmans also had a dairy farm there," she said, "and I hated to let my place go, but after my husband died during the influenza epidemic of 1918, I kept it up for three years by myself. After that I decided to retire and I've been having a good time ever since."

No Time For Longing

Ninety-one years shed from Mrs. Grow as she speaks of those days of early Township growth, but don't think she sighs for "the good old days," she doesn't have time, she says, because she's too busy enjoying present days.

When a visitor remarks that she seems very happy and cheery, Mrs. Grow replies, "Why of course I'm cheerful. Why shouldn't I be? I have my health, my family, my home and my independence, so what have I to worry about?" She's as spry and supple as a 16-year-old girl, with a peaches-and-cream complexion, glowing with soft pink.

"I'm mighty proud of being 91, but I don't expect to reach 100, and I really don't care whether I do or not. I've had so much already," she said as she was getting ready to go to church Sunday evening.

the road from the house in which she was born.

"Mother just loves it here," Mrs. Greiner states, "and we just love to have her. She's so cute and has so much pep that she still keeps me hopping."

It is during in-between seasons that she hopes to visit her youngest daughter, Mrs. Evan Thomas in Moorestown.

There is still one of Father Latch's farms which is in good running condition. It is being operated by the Misses Cora and Anna Latch, nieces of Mrs. Grow. However, Mrs. Grow herself sold her farm in 1921 to the E. S. Madara family, whose children have remodelled the old farmhouse and have turned it into quite a showplace. The other Latch farm was sold to Dr. Henry Skinner in 1914.

There are many Latch descendants throughout Lower Merion Township, all of whom will have quite a time living up to the tradition which Eva Latch Grow has fashioned in her lifetime.

Each visitor who comes her way gets a cheery, "Goodbye and safe journey to you." All her family and friends wish her more of the same each murmuring as they leave her hospitable doorstep, "Age is an adventure when it's met as she has met it."

KNOW YOUR STATE

Pennsylvania's Courts stand first in the Nation in their record of law enforcement, according to the reports of the Bureau of the Census or Judicial Crime Statistics.

More criminals were sentenced in our Courts during 1943-1944, the last year for which data are available, than in any other state in the Union. More than one-fifth of all the convictions for major criminal offenses in the United States were obtained in Pennsylvania in that twelve-month period.

Perhaps as a consequence of this vigorous enforcement of the law by our police officers and Courts, Pennsylvania is one of the lowest states in the Union in its urban crime rates.

The Commonwealth is second in population in the United States, but has the lowest record of thefts per 100,000 population of any of the forty-eight states. Its record in 1943-44 was 226 thefts per 100,000, as compared with the national average of 229 per 100,000 and the high record of 2228 in the State of Arizona. Thirty-nine states have a worse record of automobile thefts and 38 a worse record for burglaries than the Commonwealth. There were 2.95 murders recorded per 100,000 population in Pennsylvania as compared with a national average of 4.77 and a high record of 19.44 in Alabama. In crimes of violence the State's record is consistently low. Its 30 cases of robbery per 100,000 population must be compared with the United States average of 45 and a high of 121 in the State of Delaware.

Pennsylvania had less than half as many cases of aggravated assault as the United States' average and 1/19 as many as North Carolina.

Despite the present wave of lawlessness which seems the inevitable consequence of a great war, the law enforcement agencies of Pennsylvania have performed a remarkable job in making the Commonwealth so unhealthy for the criminal classes, that the State's record of major crime is one of the lowest in the entire United States.

Civilization is the humanization of man in society; his making progress there towards his true and full humanity.

Eight Legion Posts on the Main Line will take part in a pre-convention caucus to be held in Norristown August 14, and are expected to participate in the parade to be held August 24.

The parade will start from 20th St., and the Parkway, and proceed to City Hall, South on Broad St., and East to Chestnut St., to a reviewing stand at Independence Square. More than 15,000 including bands and bugle corps from all sections of the State are expected to march.

Questions and Answers

Q. I know of a lady who served as a WAVE in the navy and her husband also served in the navy. I am told they are drawing $100 a month each and will draw this for a year. I have a son in the navy and he will be discharged in July. Is there any such law granting this amount to servicemen? If so how can my son obtain this? Do they have to be unemployed or self-employed? Is it based on time spent in service or rating?—Mrs. D. W. M., Cabot, Mo.

A. The WAVE and her husband, both veterans, possibly are drawing readjustment allowance checks amounting up to $100 per month each for self-employment. The law provides that a veteran who is self-employed in any independent establishment, trade, business, profession or other vocation is eligible for readjustment allowance if his net earnings are less than $100 for the previous calendar months, the amount of the allowance being the difference between his net earnings and $100.

Q. My husband was kept out of the army until the war was over, then he saw he would have to go so he enlisted. Then he tried to get a discharge and they turned it down. Then he enlisted for the regular army on February 18, 1945, knowing he would get out when his 18 months is up. His father is unable to handle the farm properly. He has put in for a discharge and sent in the necessary papers. Do you think he will be discharged?—Mrs. A. B. Stanley, Miss.

A. He likely will get his discharge if his commanding officer thinks his is a hardship case, although since he was turned down once, unless he has new evidence it is not likely that he would be discharged on the same evidence.

Q. My son served in the army for 22 months. He was discharged to take over the farm work which was too strenuous for his father, who was disabled. In other words he was considered of more value to the army for being on the farm than otherwise. Please tell me if he is entitled to any muster-out pay?—Mrs. B. S. Morganfield, Ky.

A. If the discharge was issued purely on a dependency or hardship case, then he is not entitled to muster-out pay.

Q. My brother has re-enlisted in the army air corps six months ago. Since he has done this my family has not received any allotment checks. My father is very sick and has been in bed for five years. During this time he has been dependent on his son's checks so can you advise me what steps I should take to clear this matter?—Mrs. F. B. Sellingsgrove, Pa.

A. Since an allotment to dependent parents is voluntary on the part of the serviceman, would suggest you write your brother and ask if he has applied for an allotment.

Delaware County Schools Cooperate In School Plan

Accelerated Courses To Be Available To All Veterans

Senior high schools of Haverford Township and Radnor will cooperate with the Veterans Administration in furnishing accelerated courses for veterans. It was revealed this week by J. George Brueckmann, director of vocational rehabilitation and education service for VA Branch Office No. 3. Classes will open about September 1, and veterans from these communities wishing to take the courses may apply now. Upper Darby has the same plan under consideration, Brueckmann said.

Decision Reached

The decision to make the accelerated high school courses available to veterans was reached at a meeting between VA officials and school personnel from the three towns. Attending were Dr. R. R. Abernathy, Haverford Township superintendent; Dr. S. U. Roland, Radnor superintendent; Dr. J. E. Nancarrow, principal of Upper Darby Senior High School; Winston Walker, assistant principal, Haverford Township High School, and Dr. C. H. Williams, principal of Benjamin Franklin High School, Philadelphia. Dr. Williams said the VA program had

4th Armored Division Assn. to Organize

Organization of the Fourth Armored Division Association is underway, with Major General John S. Wood, former commanding general, serving as acting president. General Wood accompanied the division to the European Theater of Operations in December 1943, remaining with it until December 1944.

Since a complete roster of division members is not available, the association is urging veterans of the Fourth Armored to send their names and present addresses to Colonel Graham Kirkpatrick, acting secretary, whose address is 1310 Comer Building, Birmingham, Alabama.

SPORTS
SCENE

By JACK FORD

The selection of Chris Pappas, former Frankford High and Temple University star, as assistant football coach at Norristown High School is the latest evidence that the Eagles intend to be back at the top of the football world before too long. Pappas, a protege of Pop Warner, coached at Riverside (NJ) and Atlantic City high schools before he served the Army Air Corps. He served in the South Pacific during the war and received his honorable discharge as a captain last month.

Narberth's Summer basketball league has received an unusual amount of attention from the metropolitan press in recent weeks due to the many outstanding players and the intense interest shown in the league. Concrete courts are one of the reasons for the Narberth loop's popularity with the players. Other Main Line play spots would be greatly improved if these type courts were installed.

In Havertown Township, for example, two basketball leagues have been operating one night a week for the past two seasons, but the playing conditions are so inferior to Narberth that it certainly must be less enjoyable to play there.

Considering the rather amazing interest in the court game during these hot months, maybe it would be a good idea to hold a big invitation tournament thrown open to athletes and teams throughout the Main Line. It probably would be greeted enthusiastically by independent teams and college and school players, eager to get in shape for the winter season.

Speaking of basketball naturally reminds one of Bill Anderson and the fact that Lehigh University apparently intends to try to keep Andy's Lafayette team from dominating the Lehigh Valley. Lehigh has signed Dan Yarbro as its new court coach. He hails from Texas where he was one of the most successful high school and college tutors in the game. He gave North Texas State Teachers College two conference titles and during the war had an outstanding quintet in Iowa Flight. His teams use the wide-open offensive style, just the opposite of the Anderson system.

John Ogden, former Baltimore Orioles' star who now scouts the area for the Boston Braves, is one of the few oldtimers who believes in the supremacy of present performers over those of the past. According to Bill Burk in the Delaware County Sport-week, Ogden believes improves playing conditions and a greater number of participants give the moderns a huge advantage.

"Teams are better today because there are thousands more to choose from competition is keener; coaching is superior; and the finest playing equipment is available," Ogden says.

That's always been our opinion of the situation in most sports, but it is very unusual to find any ex-athlete star or oldtime fan who shares a similar view.

Drexel Hill-Narberth and Ardmore-Manoa Games Hold Spotlight

Borough Squares Series
With Havertown Nine
As Lions Capture Pair

Ardmore Increases Grip On Fourth Place By Defeating Collegeville And Drexel Hill; Kaires Beats Wayne, 1-0.

Narberth and Manoa, which had to be satisfied with an even break in their season's series, dig in to defend their one-two position in the Main Line Baseball League on their home diamonds this weekend.

Third place Drexel Hill invades Narberth Saturday and the Collegeville Superiors visit the borough Sunday for a game that originally was scheduled on the latter's field. Last place Gladwyne, always tough for the leaders, plays at Manoa Saturday while Ardmore Lions provide the opposition at Veterans Park the next day.

Both Narberth and Ardmore need victories in the crucial games with their first division rivals in order to square their series. Drexel Hill beat Narberth 10-5 and 9-1 before the borough finally won, 6-4, and Manoa won its first two games with Ardmore, 5-4 and 3-2, before the Lions turned the tables, and good, 10-4.

Ardmore, which plays at West Manayunk Saturday, was the only team to make a clean sweep of the weekend games and therefore has a two-game edge in fourth place over Wayne, its nearest rivals, and is again starting to crowd the pacesetters. With Bill Henry, peppy catcher who hails from Brookline, providing the most potent punch and Clem Bevan and Harry Whitney chalking up the victories on the mound, Ardmore outlasted Collegeville, 6-5, Saturday and upset Drexel Hill, 8-4, Sunday.

Narberth swept over Manoa, 7-2, to even matters for the season between the two of them and to temporarily boost the borough's first place margin to two full games. However, Joe Zak came up with another pitching masterpiece Sunday to give West Manayunk a 2-1 surprise triumph over Narberth and the latter's lead shrunk to a single game when Bill Kaires outpitched Harry Dessert to give Manoa a 1-0 verdict over Wayne in a stormy battle at Veterans Park.

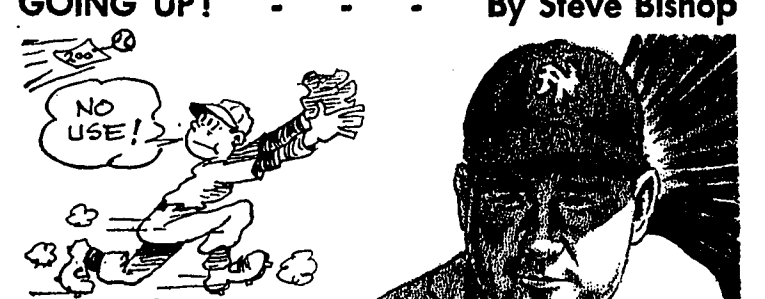

Henry's two singles and a triple helped Ardmore off to a 6-1 lead against Collegeville and enabled the sixth and Henry's two-run homer in five starts, to weather an eighth inning four-run Superior flareup. Ardmore wiped out a 4-0 deficit to spill Drexel Hill and the usually brilliant Lefty Creamy. Manny Menendez started Creamy's downfall with a double with the bases loaded in the sixth and Henry's two-run homer completed it in the eighth.

Dom (Cubby) Caniglia, who formerly pitched in the league at Berwyn several years before the war, returned in a Narberth uniform to pitch the all-important victory over Manoa Saturday. Fresh from a trial with Utica in the Eastern League since leaving the Navy, Caniglia set Manoa down with six hits and helped his own cause with two singles. Walt Cantwell was the loser.

Jack Williams, league leading hurler, was bested by Zak in Sunday's thriller, the latter winning out as a result of West Manayunk getting two first inning runs, with Frank Basile's single with bases loaded doing the damage. Zak, former Roxborough High athlete who got his experience with Nicetown A. C. and Germantown B. C., has allowed only two runs in the 27 innings he's pitched since joining the league.

Successive singles by Kaminisky, Henry and Signorelli gave Manoa its lone Sunday run which Bill Kaires protected by allowing Wayne but seven hits. Dessert was touched for only one additional bingle and he fanned two to five whiffs for Kaires. Wayne made desperate bids to pull it out in the ninth, but Pete Caniglia's effort to stretch a double into a triple went for naught. Wayne Manager Tommy Arena was put out of the game for arguing too strenuously on the play at third.

Heindels Regain
Basketball Lead

Whalen Fall to 2nd As Narberth Teams Seek Playoffs

Heindels are back in first place in the Narberth Basketball League as a result of scoring a 40-27 victory over the Welsh quintet last Thursday at the Narberth playground.

The Whalens were dropped into second place when they lost a 33-30 decision to the last place Harman as Moon Mullin of Brown Prep and Clifton Heights fame, tallied 15 points for the winners.

The Hacketts are in third place as a result of a 26-22 victory over D'Amora, 26-22, last Wednesday when the Heindels also defeated Harman, 33-23. Gil Gibbons, former L. M. and Episcopal athlete now at Yale, had 13 points for Heindels in this one.

The second-place team will play the fourth place team in the opening game of the playoffs on Monday, August 19. The first place team will oppose the third team on August 21 and the two survivors will play for the championship on Friday, August 23.

Jim Robinson is the leading individual point getter to date, having amassed 83 points. Other leaders: Bob Bailey, 43; Stu Young, 52; Tad Wehman, 49; and John Lose, 48.

Rusch to Compete
In Langhorne Race

Buddie Rusch, of Tampa, Fla., a prisoner of war for more than 40 months, will drive in the next program of AAA-sanctioned big car auto races at Langhorne Speedway on Sunday, August 11. He is among eight new entries announced by Ardmore's Jimmy Frattone, director of the one mile dirt oval.

Rusch, who purchased his Army Recruiting Special with funds that accrued while he was a prisoner, finished sixth in the 100-mile national championship on June 30, which brought racing back to Langhorne after four years of wartime enforced idleness.

COUCH PROVES ADEPT

Tony Cucinello, who lost the American League batting crown by one point last season, still lays down a perfect punt.

Now playing for the semi-pro Bushwicks, the former Chicago White Sox third baseman came up with his younger brother, Al, on third base. Tony pushed a punt down the first-base line to score Al from third. The run gave the Bushwicks an 8-7 win over the Philadelphia Stars of the Negro National League.

The No. 4 iron is in a class all by itself; just a shade in between the longer and medium shots. You may well regard it as the shorter of the long irons, or then again as the longer of the medium irons.

In any event, like all irons from No. 1 to No. 7, it is hit the same fashion. Most golfers believe that the longer shots are played more up on the left foot and the shorter ones back toward the right, with a feeling that the ball will be gotten up into the air more easily from the front.

This is a common fallacy. The best way to hit any club is to keep the ball in relatively the same position, as this enables you to maintain the same timing for the No. 4 iron, therefore, I employ the same comfortable stance I use for most other shots, addressing the ball approximately at center.

I start the club back with the turn of the body, rather than picking it up with the hands and the arms. In this way, everything should work together. The further I turn, the further the club is taken back. And the further you take the club back, the more time you have to generate speed in your downswing. And in golf, as in many other sports, speed is power.

On the downswing, remember to transfer the weight from the right to the left foot. In continuing the swing through the ball, a complete follow through is possible only by being on the left foot, as the body can turn on this foot only if the weight is there.

Direction is a direct result of hand action. As you near the ball on the downswing, try to get the hands as close as possible to their starting position. The more readily you achieve this objective, the straighter your shot should be.

Narberth Team Gets St. Thomas as Rival In Playoffs

Post-season playoffs to determine the champion of the Mont-Del Catholic Baseball League will get underway next Friday although one of the positions is still in doubt as a result of rain disrupting the schedule of the final week of the regular season.

St. Margaret's of Narberth has clinched first place and will pair off with St. Thomas of Villanova in the opening playoffs game Friday at Narberth. Good Counsel of Bryn Mawr is sure of second place, but its opponent is still in doubt, although Annunciation of Brookline appears to have the edge in the battle for fourth place, although sharing the position with two rivals.

Members of the league will meet Monday night at Narberth to make final playoff plans.

St. Margaret's will be the favorite to take the title although it dropped a 5-0 decision to St. Thomas last Thursday and a 7-3 verdict to St. Laurence of Highland Park on Monday. Annunciation romped over St. Laurence, 9-2, on Friday at Brookline to remain in the fourth place tie.

Good Counsel seriously hurt the playoff chances of St. Colman when Mickey Gavin's youngsters upset the Ardmore nine, 10-4, on Monday.

Brookline Boasts
Ping-Pong ChampsOakmont Girls Best
Manoa, 15-9, to Win
Softball Title

Dorothy Jackson and Gordon Hutton, both of Brookline, were the winners in the 1946 Ping-Pong Championships for girls and boys of the Elementary Playgrounds of Havertown Township.

The tournament, sponsored by the Oakmont Playground, directed by Wm. J. Laramy, was held on Friday, August 9. William Buchanan and Howard Price, directors of the Brookline and Llanerch Playgrounds, assisted. Umpires were Barry Goughan and Jack Ryan of Oakmont.

In the girls' final Dorothy Jackson, Brookline defeated Carolyn Carr of Oakmont, 21-11, 21-10. In the play off for second place Sally Sweeney, Oakmont won from Carolyn Carr 15-21, 21-18, 21-15.

In the boys' final Gordon Hutton, Brookline defeated his teammate Dick McGuigan, 21-14, 21-15. Earle Davis, Oakmont, was the victor over McGuigan, 21-12, 21-17 for second place.

Oakmont girls defeated Manoa, 15-9 Friday morning to win the softball championship. Members of the winning team were Sally Sweeney, Margaret Totano, Regina Paulin, Margaret Soneenik, Betsy Foley, Katherine Foley, Carolyn Carr, Mary Shaeffer, Dolores Totano, Barbara Keller, Jean Hagey.

Scientists estimate that the world's known deposits of readily available uranium total about 30,000 tons.
